Sessions

Building on the Past – Constructing for the Future

Learn about the 9,000 foot long slack water harbor for the Port of Cates Landing. Randall Rhodes will look at the port's historical background, the site selection process, the port development features, soil characteristics, and much more.

Randall Rhodes, PE, Senior Design Manager
Forcum Lannom Contractors, Dyersburg

Illicit Discharge Detection and Elimination

Storm water permits require the identification and elimination of illicit discharges, but what actually are "illicit discharges"? In this lively and interactive presentation, Tom Lawrence will discuss some of the more common pollutants found, as well as some of the more unusual types of materials, and how they are found.

Tom Lawrence, PE

Storm Water Consultant, Memphis, Tennessee

National Flood Insurance Program

This session will give a basic understanding of the evolution of the National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) and will include a discussion of flood control, flood plain management and flood mitigation. It will outline some of the basic requirements of the NFIP for local governments, and also identify NFIP related services offered by the State of Tennessee and the consequences of non-compliance with NFIP regulations and Federal sanctions.

David Pechin, Community Planning Regional Director,
ECD Local Planning Assistance Office, Jackson

Bonus Session - Seismic Issues in the Mid-South

Richard W. Howe, PE, R.W. Howe & Associates

"I attended DSCC's continuing education seminar last April for engineers, architects, landscape architects, and interior designers to get some of my required engineering continuing education courses. DSCC did a super job of providing a series of approved courses by very interesting and knowledgeable speakers. The facilities could not have been any better, a very comfortable and informal atmosphere, and we were served a great hot lunch. The cost was exceptionally reasonable, and DSCC is only a couple of minutes from my office. I had a great experience, and I plan to continue to attend DSCC for my continuing education requirements. I would highly recommend DSCC's program to other design professionals."
